  - k. We reserve the right to set the minimum deposit, and minimum withdrawal amounts in accordance with the requirements of a payment service provider being used. You should therefore check the payment service provider's requirements in advance.
- 5.6. Where, for whatever reason, we do not envisage processing your withdrawal request within three (3) business days of its receipt or at all, we will inform you as soon as possible. We shall not be responsible for any delay that may occur following our execution of your withdrawal request once the funds have left our account.

Internal transfers may only be executed between the accounts of the same type or between different types of accounts if the amount being transferred is greater than the required initial minimum deposit.
- 5.10. We will process a transfer to another Trading Account in the currency of that Trading Account.

- 5.12. Transfers to third parties are not permitted save for internal transfers between an Introducing Broker (IB) and an IB's client, in which case the transfers shall be processed manually.
- 5.13. We may reject your internal transfer request and are not obliged to explain the reason for the rejection.
- 5.14. We are required to verify your identity and current residential address after you have submitted your personal details when applying for your Trading Account. As such, and also for financial security reasons, we may at any time ask you to provide us with a copy of your valid identity document, such as national identity card, passport or driver's licence or a combination of any of the two, along with confirmation of your current residential address in the form of a recent utility bill issued within the last three months; such a copy must be certified as true copy by Notary Public or another certifier acceptable to us. We shall not be responsible for your failure or omission to receive such a notification.

9. Margin Obligations

- 9.1. We allow you to trade in financial instruments offered by us with a contract value greater than the balance you hold in your Trading Account, by using Leverage. When you trade on a leveraged Account, the actual funds that you are required to commit to a contract is referred to as the Margin. For example, if your account is leveraged 1:100 and the value of your contract is €50,000, the Margin you are required to hold is €500. Accordingly, you are obliged to maintain sufficient funds in your Trading Account at all times to be able to meet the Margin Requirements.
- 9.2. When you are close to breaching the Margin Requirements, you may receive a Margin Call from us, informing you that you have not enough Margin to place Orders or maintain Open Positions.
- 9.3. Where your Trading Account has no sufficient funds to maintain Open Positions, we may close or terminate any or all of your Open Positions, with or without notice to you, in which case we are entitled to close all of your margined Transactions.

- 9.4. You may increase the amount of Free Margin available in your Trading Account by: (a) closing out or reducing one or more Open Positions and/or (b) depositing additional funds into your Trading Account.

10. Notice of Risk

- 10.1. By accepting this Agreement, you thereby acknowledge that trading in financial instruments that we offer is highly speculative, may involve a high degree of risk and is only appropriate for persons who can assume a risk of loss well in excess of money they invest. There is a number of risks you should be aware of before beginning to trade, which include, but may not be limited to, the following:

- Leverage Risk
- Market Volatility Risk
- Systems Risk
- Execution Risk

- 10.2. Leverage Risk: We offer you the ability to trade in financial instruments with a value greater than the collateral you commit to a trade. While a high degree of leverage has the potential for larger profits, it also carries a high risk of losing the money you invest. In the event that the market moves against you, you may suffer a loss in excess of the money you deposit in your Trading Account and in excess of the Margin required to support your Open Positions.

- 10.3. Market Volatility Risk: Derivative markets are highly volatile and are subject to many influences which may result in rapid price fluctuations and reflect unforeseen events or changes in conditions with the inevitable consequence being market volatility. Market volatility risk is therefore the risk that the value of your positions will/may change as a result of a movement in a related market. For CFD's, the underlying market can be a respective index or commodity you are trading, and for an FX Contract, the underlying market is the currencies you are trading. Changes to these markets can have an immediate impact on the value of your investment. Given the potential level of volatility in the markets, it is therefore your responsibility to closely monitor your Open Positions at all times.

10.4. Systems Risk: The operational systems risk inherent in online trading applies to every trade placed. This includes disruption to communications, IT systems, software or hardware errors or other events that delay, interrupt or otherwise affect the operation of our systems and the Trading Platform. Where such disruption occurs, you may suffer a financial loss or loss of opportunity. We shall not be liable for any loss or damage you may sustain, in relation to the operation of our systems and the Trading Platform or any other related service that we may offer from time to time except where such disruption has been caused by fraud or a dishonest act on our part.

10.5. Execution Risk: You further acknowledge that there may be risks relating to our ability to execute an Order that you place on the Trading Platform. These include:

(a) Delays in Execution

The risk that your Order may be executed with a delay, or not executed at all, due to a delay in transmission of data between your Trading Platform and our servers/systems. This may result in the price at which you have placed your Order being no longer available. Since you will be accessing the Trading Platform through a third-party internet service provider, there is a risk that your computer or other device may not maintain a constant, stable and uninterrupted connection with our servers and systems.

(b) Unavailable Pricing

You may face a risk that a financial instrument you have wanted to trade cannot be offered by us at a particular time. This may occur when liquidity in the relevant market is short and our liquidity providers cannot provide us a market for those instruments and as such you will not be able to trade in such instruments.

(c) Inverted Spreads

Circumstances may arise whereby our liquidity feed can be disrupted. When the liquidity feed comes back online, the Bid price may be greater than the sell offer (which is called an inverted spread). Until inverted spreads are resolved, you may not be able to trade on the Trading Platform. We reserve the right to reverse trades executed where this has occurred.

(d) Slippage

If put simply, slippage means any difference between the intended execution price and actual execution price. Slippage is more likely to occur in the forex market when volatility is high due to, for instance, fundamental news events that cause major financial institutions to remove their orders from liquidity markets pending the outcome of such news. This may produce results that can be less favourable than the intended execution price which may cause significant losses even where we try to execute your Order at the next best price.

11. Force Majeure

11.1. For the purpose of this Agreement, Force Majeure events shall include events or circumstances beyond our reasonable control, including but not limited to the following:

- a) acts of God, including without limitation earthquake, fire, flood, epidemic, tsunami, hurricane or any other natural hazard, making it impossible for us to perform under this Agreement;
- b) breakdown, failure or malfunction of any electronic, network or communication lines as well as power, equipment or software failures;
- c) government actions; threat or outbreak of war, military acts, hostilities, acts of terrorism, riots, civil unrest, economic or political crisis or events that may prevent us from maintaining an orderly market in one or more financial instruments being traded hereunder;
- d) suspension, liquidation or closure of any market, or the abandonment of any event, on the basis of which we establish our quotes, or the imposition of limits or special terms on the trading in any such market or event;

- e) any unlawful or malicious act committed against the Company, its officers, employees or assets, including, but not limited to hacker attacks on our servers, fraud and similar acts;
  - f) a failure to perform their obligations by any of our suppliers, intermediate brokers, liquidity providers, agents, dealers or clearing agents.
- 11.2. Where any of the Force Majeure events occurs, we shall take all reasonable steps to inform you about their occurrence as soon as practicable.
- 11.3. Where a Force Majeure event exists, we may, without prejudice to any other rights under this Agreement, at any time and without prior notice to you, take any or all of the following steps:
- a) increase Margin Requirements;
  - b) close out any or all Open Positions at such prices as we reasonably deem correct and appropriate;
  - c) suspend or modify the application of any or all terms of this Agreement for as long as the Force Majeure event makes it impossible or impractical for us to comply with those terms;
  - d) take or refrain from taking any such other action as we deem, under the circumstances, appropriate with regard to the Company, you and other Company clients;
  - e) re-assess the financial results of your Trading Operations performed during the Force Majeure event(s) and change Quotes, delete your Order(s), increase Spreads, decrease Leverage, or deactivate your Trading Account altogether.
- 11.4. We shall not be liable for any type of loss or damage you sustain if such loss or damage arises out of, or has been incurred due to, any failure, interruption or delay in fulfilling our obligations hereunder if same has been caused by a Force Majeure event.

12. Warranties, Representations and Covenants

- (d) you have complete understanding, and are agreeing with all terms and conditions, of this Agreement;
- (e) all and any information you provide to us is true, accurate and not misleading;
- (f) all and any Transactions performed on your Trading Account(s) are in compliance with this Agreement;
- (g) you are aware of the risks involved in trading the financial instruments that we offer and that any decision that you make to trade them is at your own risk;
- (h) you are willing and financially able to sustain a total loss of the monies that you deposit with us to open or maintain a position;
- (i) the funds that you invest in or use to perform any Transaction hereunder do not represent proceeds of, are not derived from, and will not be used in any way in, any illegal activity including money laundering and terrorist financing;
- (j) the funds that you invest in or use to perform any Transaction hereunder are free of any lien, charge, pledge or any other encumbrance;
- (k) no event of Default (as further set out in Section 13) has occurred or is occurring to you.

citizenship etc.; and (b) the occurrence of any event of Default (as further set out in Section 13 and as applicable).

13. Default

13.1. Each and any of the following shall, for the purpose of this Agreement, constitute an event of Default:
